BAKERY INSTALLED PEERLESS MOULDER

Only Machine of its Kind in Western Canada demonstrated at Reception

"Oh, how neat and convenient!" were the expressions of nearly all the ladies who inspected the new machine at the City Bakery on Thursday evening last. The occasion was the reception given by Mr. Murray, who invited the Kivianians, their wives, and a number of other friends to inspect the new Peerless moulder and divider, which he installed a few days ago. This machine, as the name implies, moulds and divides and rounds the loaves into shape, and it is not too necessary to touch the dough with the hands. Prior to the dough reaching the new machine, the flour is sifted and the dough is mixed by machinery, which are big labor-saving inventions as well as being clean and sanitary.

The bread is baked in two ovens, one a double decker, which were constructed recently, and are the best models known to the trade. After baking, the bread is placed on racks for cooling.

The next process is wrapping the loaves which is done by a machine heated by electricity and the waxed paper is quickly folded and sealed. The loaf is then ready for delivery to the customer in the most sanitary condition.

With the installation of the new moulder, which is the only one in western Canada, the Wetaskiwin City Bakery has been made one of the most complete and convenient bake shops to be found anywhere, and Mr. Murray is to be highly commended upon his enterprise and in identifying assisting to keep Wetaskiwin in the van of progress.

After the visitors had witnessed the interesting demonstrations of the various machines, daily refreshments were served in the ice cream parlor, which has recently been renovated and fitted up for the season's business. Mr. Murray cordially invites the public to call at any time and inspect the premises, and the new machine and his model shop of which he is justly proud.

PONOKA CARNIVAL MOST SUCCESSFUL

Saturday evening brought the Ponoka Elks' Carnival to a close, and to say it was a success is putting it mildly. The curling rink was crowded throughout the week, and the drawings must have been considerable. Saturday evening was about the record for attendance, and the committee of management are most grateful for the assistance given them by the people in town and country alike. Of course the big event on Saturday night was the drawing for the Ford Tudor Sedan, which took place about 11 p.m. The car was won by Mr. L. Bergen, of Hobbema, with ticket No. 1210. The ticket was drawn by Miss Martin, of the Martin Dancers, Edmonton, and the judges were Messrs. Thos. McKelvey, A. Sayers, and L. Stuart, and entire satisfaction was expressed.

While every item on the carnival program was commendable, it must be said that the Martin family proved the most popular of all. Their orchestra, songs and dances won praise from all, and a return visit to our town by this talented aggregation will be looked forward to with pleasure.

It is not yet possible to give the total drawings this week, but it is expected that the amount will be given out next week.—Ponoka Herald.

The British cooperators recently found in Russia a tremendously successful cooperative structure which had grown from 1,800,000 members in 1913, to a present membership of over 10,000,000. They found that of the three trading systems in vogue in Russia—the state, the cooperative and the private-cooperative trading was the leader in many communities and may eventually supplant both governmental and private trading.

EXHIBITION DATES HAVE BEEN CHANGED

The request of the Wetaskiwin Exhibition Association to have the fair held at an earlier date than arranged for at the fair conference in the spring, has been granted. Consequently the Wetaskiwin Exhibition will be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 5, 6 and 7. This arrangement will bring the fair on before the harvest.

FOURTH BI-MONTHLY GOV'T CROP REPORT

Issued by the department of agriculture, Edmonton, June 12, 1926:

The present crop growing season in Alberta is being characterized by extremely variable conditions. While the central and northern portions of the province are experiencing very heavy precipitation, the south-western and south-eastern districts report dry conditions.

Throughout the larger portion of the province there has been sufficient moisture to carry the growing crops along satisfactorily. In fact, in some of the central and northern districts, heavier precipitation than has been experienced in several years has been recorded. In one storm in the Edmonton territory more than three inches having fallen. This storm was fairly general over the central part of the province. Several localities report the wettest season in years, and the crop growth has been rapid and vigorous. Similar conditions prevail in the Peace River district.

South of the main line of the C.P.R. conditions have been dry, and in the south-western and south-eastern corners of the province, the situation is somewhat critical, although the general conditions would be vastly improved by rain within the next week or ten days. The crop on standing-fallow in these districts is summing up very well, but the grain on the spring plowed land is suffering. The dry weather has been accompanied by high winds and loss from soil drifting and lack of moisture, and partly to the early operation of the cut-worms. No further reports of damage by pests have been received, however.

Light rains fell throughout the northern districts on the 10th which freshened the crops somewhat, but heavier precipitation is needed in the extreme south. In Calgary and district the rain lasted for several hours. Slight frosts have occurred during the past week in the central and northern districts, but damage was negligible. Alfalfa cutting is in progress in the irrigated districts, and the crop appears to be in good order. Irrigation water is being used extensively for all crops.

THE HOG AND BACON TRADE

The year 1925 was a prosperous one for hog raising in Canada in spite of the fact that the number marketed was less than in the previous year. There were 2,833,418 hogs marketed at stockyards and packing plants as compared with 2,166,689 in 1924. The decrease was brought about chiefly by the heavy liquidation of sows in 1924, and was more than compensated for by a marked improvement in the general quality of the animals offered, and by considerably higher average prices. According to a review of the live stock market and meat trade prepared by the Dominion live stock branch, average prices ranged up to $4.50 per hundredweight higher than during the previous year, an increase of about 77 per cent. This made the total revenue from sales much higher than in 1924. In fact the estimated value of hogs sold on stockyards, under federal grading, was $27,010,724 against $18,777,753 in 1924.

The export bacon trade with Great Britain was very encouraging. Canadian exporters found a receptive market for their products, and 1,266,361 head hundredweight of bacon was shipped compared with 1,199,249 in 1924. There was a marked improvement in quality and the average price received was considerably better. It is encouraging to know that in 1925 Canada was the only source of British supply to hold or increase sales in comparison with the business of 1924. The outlook, too, is bright. Industrial conditions at home and abroad show evidence of further improvement. Consumptive demand is increasing, and it is fairly evident that increased production of hogs in this country will find a ready and profitable market.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Crooked Lake will meet at the home of Mrs. Dye and Mrs. Peterson on Thursday, June 24th.

RATE OF TEN MILLS IN M. D. BIGSTONE

Estimates for Year Passed.
Grant made to Wetaskiwin
Hospital Board

A meeting of the council of the Municipal District of Bigstone, 459, was held on June 2nd with all the members present.

The minutes of meeting held May 5th and May 31st were read and adopted.

The secretary submitted a letter from the equalization board giving the total equalized assessed value of the lands in the municipality as $1,862,240.00, being approximately a decrease of 59 per cent.

The matter of a grant to the Wetaskiwin Exhibition association was discussed. It was moved by Coun. Barleigh that this council is not in a position to give a grant at this time. The following estimate of expenditures was then approved on motion of Coun. Olson:

| Public Health | 150.00 |
| Legal Expense | 150.00 |
| | $5500.00 |
| Total Expenditure | $15550.00 |

A bylaw authorizing the secretary treasurer to levy on all assessable lands at the rate of 10 mills to meet expenditures, was read three times and passed on motion of Coun. Ratray.

It was moved by Coun. Krause that the secretary be instructed to write the department of agriculture to see if steps cannot be taken to exterminate gophers on the Indian reserve.

It was moved by Coun. Olson that the applications of Laura Gillette and C. B. McMurdo for permission to sell soft drinks at Ma-me-O Beach be granted.

R. C. Young, weed inspector, gave a very instructive report on the meeting of weed inspectors at Oids.

Dr. McColgan addressed the meeting in connection with medical inspection of schools and the secretary was instructed to write the schools in connection with same.

It was moved by Coun. Barleigh that this council enter into an agreement with the Wetaskiwin hospital for the care of the indigent sick of the municipality for the consideration of $800.00.

It was moved by Coun. Olson that C. J. Hanson be the representative of the Bigstone municipality on the hospital board.

It was moved by Coun. Olson that the case of N. Bratsky be taken up with Alex. Knox.

Coun. Ratray was delegated to look into the circumstances of N. Bratsky's wife and supply any necessary help.

INCUBATOR PLANNED FOR 60,000 CHICKENS

Incubators of 60,000 egg capacity, and brooder houses in keeping with the space required for this number of chicks are part of the plant which is proposed will be operated at Calgary under cooperative principles, at a cost of $35,000 for the plant, with 1750 shares valued at $20, to raise the necessary revenue.

This decision was reached at a meeting of poultrymen and delegates from all parts of the province.

New York city's tallest office building, to be built by Oscar E. Konkle in gratitude for the recovery of his son, will be a 65 story hotel, 800 feet high, and will contain an auditorium for an interdenominational church, and the profits of the hotel ten per cent is to be used for missionary work.

WEDDINGS HONEY—SHAW

A quiet wedding, but one of much interest, took place at Tucuma, Washington, on May 24th, when Miss Pearl Shaw became the bride of Mr. Ernest Honey, formerly of Wetaskiwin, Alberta. After the wedding, the happy couple motored to Vancouver, where they will spend their honeymoon, the guests of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Shaw. The bride was the recipient of many useful gifts. We join the many friends in extending the heartfelt congratulations.

GERMAN BAPTISTS 25th ANNIVERSARY

The founders of the German Baptist church, five miles west and two miles north of Camrose, arrived and took up land in the vicinity of the present church on April 29, 1901, and gathered together the first Sunday in May to hold services.

Sunday, June 13, 1926, will remain an unforgettable day in the history of the church. This was the day of the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the church. Several of the charter members were present, including Rev. C. Welser, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Welser, Mr. E. Welser and Mr. G. Schmidtke, as well as two of the previous ministers, Rev. F. A. Mueller of Edmonton, and Rev. A. Heitling, now of St. Paul, Minn. The Rev. F. Benke of Wetaskiwin, was also present, besides a large number of visitors from Edmonton, Foreburg, Glory Hill, Wetaskiwin, and neighbors from the surrounding district, approaching 300 persons.

Although the celebration commenced at 10 a.m. and continued until 10 p.m., the real jubilee service was from 1:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. This time was spent in recitals of the blessings of God experienced during the last 25 years, and in songs and prayers of thanksgiving.

The evening from 8 p.m. until 10 p.m., was devoted to a musical festival which was a matter of great enjoyment to the audience. Selections were rendered by the brass band of the Wetaskiwin church, by the string band of the local church, by the Edmonton Ladies' Quartet, by the Wetaskiwin Male Quartet, and the local band. There were riddles, duets, and solos, recitations, and short dramas. It was a time of keen enjoyment and spiritual uplifting.—Camrose Canadian.

ACTION FOR NON-DELIVERY OF GRAIN IS DISMISSED

At the sitting of the district court at Ponoka, on the 26th of May, the case of H. N. Trimble vs Roy Capling was heard. This was an action by Mr. Trimble claiming damages from Mr. Capling for non-delivery of 1400 bushels of grain alleged to have been sold by Capling to Trimble, delivery to have been made on the cars at Ponoka. After hearing the evidence and arguments of counsel for the respective parties His Honor Judge reserved his decision. On June 1st the Judge delivered his judgment, dismissing the plaintiff's action with costs. Amongst other things His Honor held that the contract was unenforceable, and also that Trimble had not carried out his part of the contract in taking delivery of the grain in the manner prescribed.—Herald.

The Egyptian government recently appointed Dr. Anissa Sayba, a practicing lady physician of Cairo, medical inspector of schools. Dr. Sayba was born in Syria, and is a Christian. Her medical course was taken at Scotland. Her sister, Mrs. Ghazwan, is Cairo's one woman lawyer, and is a graduate of the Sorbonne.

KIWANIS CLUB MET AT E. RASMUSON'S

Address by John Blue on Kiwian objectives, stressing Cooperation

On Tuesday evening the Kiwanis club had a delightful outing at the commodious home of Kiwanian E. Rasmuson, Crooked Lake, where a sumptuous luncheon was provided. Before the gathering sat down, the visitors from town had a social intercourse with the farmers assembled from that community, and enjoyed the beautiful surroundings on the bank of Crooked Lake.

Kiwanian John Blue, secretary of the Edmonton Board of Trade, was the speaker for the occasion, and he referred to some of the objectives of the club, in cooperation with the federal and provincial governments, the Saskatchewan college of agriculture, the Moose Jaw live stock exchange, and the agricultural societies in the districts visited, they have equipped and will operate a cattle improvement train through central Saskatchewan. The library will include visits to 25 districts in the province.

Pure bred Shorthorn, Hereford, Angus, Red Poll, Holstein and Ayrshire bulls will be included in special cars on the train, and these will be for sale with privileges afforded by the easy terms of the livestock purchase and sale act. The Canadian Pacific have provided specially equipped demonstration and lecture cars, moving picture cars with films of general interest to all of the family. The demonstration livestock on the train will include beef and dairy cattle types, and short lectures will be given in the open air when the weather is favorable. Emphasis is placed upon the importance of riding each district of the scrub land, and the fall market price will be paid when exchanged for pure breeds, the railway company shipping the scrubs free of freight of the Moose Jaw stock yards and abattoirs.

Mr. Blue referred to some of the national problems which had arisen since confederation, and also to the growing tendency of the young people to leave the country to move to the cities. Commissions, both provincial and federal, had been appointed to look into different matters, but some of the big national problems had not been touched. It was not fair for the country to have the burden of educating the young people and then have them move into the cities. It was better to have a predominant country life than a predominant city life.

The farmer must be among the best business men in the community. They must try to get along. He cannot syndicate his product, as the manufacturer does, and sell in a wholesale way. If he is the farmer the hardest hit, when the conditions are low, is the lowest? But the farmer is sometimes a bad bargainer, when he does not sell his grain on a rising market.

The country needs schools and roads even more than Wetaskiwin and Edmonton. Those in the cities should make sacrifices for those in the country if necessary. The boys must have the best education, and stability should be given to the teaching profession, so that the best men and women will stay in it.

The country should have a good vigorous, agricultural press. Canadian should not let matters drift along until the farmers get in the position of the peasant class.

NOMINATIONS FOR FRIDAY

The nominations for the election will take place at the office of the Municipal District of Montague on Friday of this week from the hours of twelve o'clock noon until two o'clock in the afternoon. It is expected that three candidates, namely, John F. Inglis, H. J. Montgomery, and E. E. Sparks will be placed in nomination. The election will be held on Monday, June 28th, with the advance poll on Thursday, Friday and Saturday preceding.

UNITED CHURCH PICNIC

The congregational and Sunday school picnic will be held at the fair grounds, on Wednesday, June 23, in the afternoon. Supper will be served in the pavilion at 6 o'clock. There will be sports for all. The United church invites you to come and enjoy this picnic.

BETTER C.N.R. EARNINGS

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending June 7, 1926, were $5,648,360, as compared with $4,925,141 for the same week of 1925, an increase of $1,619,719 or 25 per cent.

A new gas well brought in in the Foremost field in southern Alberta has a production of 11,000,000 cubic feet per day. The drilling of this well to a depth of 3,250 feet was completed in 43 days.

MRS. G. E. WISEMAN RECEIVES SAD NEWS

Mrs. George E. Wiseman received a telegram on Friday morning last, advising her that her mother, Mrs. F. Wallace, had passed away at the home of her daughter in Turin, N.S., after a brief illness. She was aged seventy-seven years. The deceased will be well remembered by a number of Wetaskiwinians, as she visited here for some time a couple of years ago.

C.P.R. COOPERATING TO IMPROVE CATTLE

Supplementing the fodder crop campaigns undertaken during the past spring with trains operating over the three western provinces, the Canadian Pacific railway company announced that, in cooperation with the federal and provincial governments, the Saskatchewan college of agriculture, the Moose Jaw live stock exchange, and the agricultural societies in the districts visited, they have equipped and will operate a cattle improvement train through central Saskatchewan. The library will include visits to 25 districts in the province.

Pure bred Shorthorn, Hereford, Angus, Red Poll, Holstein and Ayrshire bulls will be included in special cars on the train, and these will be for sale with privileges afforded by the easy terms of the livestock purchase and sale act. The Canadian Pacific have provided specially equipped demonstration and lecture cars, moving picture cars with films of general interest to all of the family. The demonstration livestock on the train will include beef and dairy cattle types, and short lectures will be given in the open air when the weather is favorable. Emphasis is placed upon the importance of riding each district of the scrub land, and the fall market price will be paid when exchanged for pure breeds, the railway company shipping the scrubs free of freight of the Moose Jaw stock yards and abattoirs.

It was decided by motion that no action be taken to amend the early closing bylaw.

SOUTHERN ALBERTA GETS HEAVY RAINS

A million dollar rain fell in the province over the weekend, and ranging from light showers in the eastern part to two-day downpours in the south, the badly needed moisture extended as far north as Red Deer and south nearly to the border, Centre receiving a five-hour storm Sunday.

The eastern part of the province is the only part now suffering from lack of rain. Medicine Hat having spent a sunshiny week end. Light showers were felt in the Brooks district, but otherwise eastern sections have not received much benefit from the cold rain which drenched the south and central Alberta Sunday.—Albertian.

THREE BURNED TO DEATH ON SUNDAY

Sangued, Alta., June 14.—Three persons are dead as the result of a fire which started 12 miles north of here early Sunday morning. The home of E. W. Hone, soldier, was destroyed, and three sons, Alfred, 20, James 12, and Samuel, 9, are the victims.

Mr. and Mrs. Hone and daughter, escaped in their night clothes and were not injured badly, although Mr. Hone suffered from burns about the face.

THIEVES QUICKLY CAUGHT

L. J. Caldwell assisted in locating two men who went off with a bag belonging to W. Huddellstone of Killam. The car was taken late Saturday night from the front of a Killam store. Word was sent to Camrose and the men were arrested there on Sunday. On Monday they were tried before Magistrate Jackson, and on Monday afternoon, in the custody of Police Caldwell, they were on their way to Fort Saskatchewan, within 36 hours of committing the theft. Their sentence is 18 months with hard labor, and they gave their names as J. P. Toivola (a single man) and Nick Alexander, who has a wife and two children at Leduc. They had abandoned the stolen car two miles west of Strome, when they ran out of gasoline.—Bavist Sun.

BABY CLINIC

The Women's Institute of Wetaskiwin district will hold a baby clinic in the hospital here on Saturday, June 19, commencing at 10 a.m., conducted by Dr. Jenkins, medical officer, assisted by Dr. J. C. Shillaber—a nurse from the—,—colletly free of charge, and patients in the community are urged to take advantage of this opportunity of having their children examined.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON CLOSING BYLAW

Several Proposed Deals referred to Committee. Free Light for Carnival

The regular meeting of the city council was held on Tuesday evening with Deputy Mayor Chamberlain presiding, and Ald. Brown, Gohrman, Patton and Scott in attendance.

After the adoption of the minutes, a letter was read regarding the separation of the land of Esther Evans from the city. The council gave its consent to this proposed action.

Letters from the Alberta Refineries Limited and from Howatt & Howatt were filed.

The account of A. N. Duff, amounting to $24.75, for work at the nuisance ground, was referred to the public property committee.

The request of the Kiwanis Club, through Kiwanian Frank Montgomery, for free lighting of the booths at the curling rink during the carnival, was granted.

The matter of grading streets east of the court house and the erection of two street lights was referred to the public works committee for report at next meeting.

The account of W. P. Meredith, amounting to $24.75, for work at the nuisance ground, was referred to the public property committee.

The request of Wm. Stein for motive power for his chopping mill was referred to the light and water committee for report.

The following accounts were passed for payment: General, $34.51; Electric Light, $313.35; Waterworks, $13.25; Supplementary, $257.19.

The request of Mr. Mattail to purchase eight lots from the city, was referred to the public property committee with power to act.

It was decided by motion that no action be taken to amend the early closing bylaw.

Bylaw No. 522, respecting the exchange of lots between George D. Wallace and Sims Brown Co. was read three times and finally passed.

The business tax bylaw was left over until the next meeting for consideration.

Meeting adjourned.

KIWANIS KARNIVAL WILL GO OVER BIG

Every member of the Kiwanis Club is now very much interested and is doing his share to make the Carnival, which is to be held on June 29th - 30th - July 1st, at the curling rink, a big success. All the committees of delegates attend, and the advertising matter will be ready for distribution in a few days.

The sports committee is planning to have three days of sport, one of the features of which will be baseball tournament. Other attractions will be announced later.

There will be a monster parade and a number of free shows, as well as the booths where games of different kinds will be played—including house-house, drawing for blankets, dolls and novelties of every description as well as refreshments. A good floor will be constructed in part of the building, and a jockey dance will be held over the three nights. Free stunts of different kinds will be staged. There will be fun and frolic for all.

ARTHUR BEAUMONT RUNNING IN PONOKA

Ponoka, June 14.—Owing to illness, Mr. C. O. Cunningham, who represented this constituency in the provincial legislature from 1917 to 1921, and who was again nominated to contest the present elections, was compelled a few days ago to withdraw from the contest.

A new convention was called on short notice in the town hall Saturday night, and a good representation of delegates attended from the farthest corners of the constituency.

Following the convention a public meeting was held at which Mr. McGillivray, who was unable to attend, owing to having previously been booked to speak at other points, was represented by H. H. Crawford, ex-M.L.A. of Edmonton.

The convention was called to order at 7 o'clock by George Bowker, president of the Conservative organization. Two nominations were placed before the convention in the persons of Dr. Byers of Rimby and Arthur Beaumont, barrister, of Ponoka. Dr. Byers received 11 votes in favor of Mr. Beaumont and the nomination of Mr. Beaumont was made unanimous.

Backache A Sure Sign

Of Kidney Trouble
When the kidneys get ill the back gives out. But the back is not to blame; the ache comes from the kidneys which lie under the small of the back.

Therefore, dull pains in the back, or sharp, quick twinges, are warnings of sick kidneys—warnings of kidney trouble.

Plasters and liniments will do the back no good, for they cannot reach the kidneys which cause the trouble.

reach the kidneys themselves, as they are a special remedy for the kidneys, and the kidneys only. They banish all the pain and aches by making the kidneys filter out all the poisons from the system.

THE KEEPER OF THE BEES

By GENE STRATTON PORTER

It was several days yet until the time for Margaret Cameron to make her second inspection. The pad Jamie removed that morning looked as fresh and clean as when it had been applied. The morning tomato juice, the afternoon orange juice, the soaking in the sea, the looking in the sands, the clean, dustless, salt-dried air, absorbing occupation, all day out of doors, a mind with something to dwell on that was holy, and was beautiful—what doctor need hope to compete with such a combination, such an exhibition of nature's power for healing? Perhaps it was the clean and he had removed, the evidence that there was a skin coating over his breast, firm enough to hold through the work of the day, the feeling of coolness and satisfaction in the pit of his stomach, the absence of heat and burning in his blood, probably it was a combination of all these things that had made Jamie, standing facing the glass that morning, voice the joyful conviction: "I'm going to make it! As sure as there's a good God in the heavens, I'm going to be a well man again!"

Right there was where Jamie received a blow, an awful blow, a blow from which he shrank, and which chilled his face and set his hands to shivering. His voice sounded strained in his own ears because he said it aloud: "And by all that's holy, I contracted to die! It was part of my agreement to be through with life in six months at the most! I said there wasn't a chance that I'd live, and probably the girl who married me would not have done it if she had not thought that I was practically a dead man."

Soberly Jamie laid on the pad and fastened the bandage that held it in place. Soberly he donned his clothing and went out to his work. Every few minutes he stopped, and stood staring before him. Fifty times that morning he said to himself: "There isn't a ghost of a chance of my dying in six months or six years, or ten times six years if I keep on improving as I am now. The only way I could die would be to wreck myself, and if the day ever comes when I meet Alice Louise face to face and her circumstances seem to be accompanied by mitigation, what will she think of me for being alive?"

Then Jamie's sense of humor came to the surface. "If matters turned out in such a way that I had a chance to live, I suppose she wouldn't ask me to kill myself if the wound didn't kill me; and if she did, I scarcely believe I'd follow even the dictates of a lady quite that far. I'll tell her I was honest, that that storm night was as black for me as it was for her, that the struggle that raged in my heart was the same thing as the storm in hers, or the storm on the sea. I'll tell her that I'm in good fortune that the sun has broken through and that there's life in store for me. I'll tell her that I called on God and He came to the rescue and made it life and work and a chance for happiness. I'll tell her that if she'll call on God, it will be all right, I'll be right on her problems as mine are straightforward. I'll tell her that it is not my fault that I'm alive."

Margaret Cameron would be overjoyed the next time she examined his chest. He found himself so elated, so full of hope that day that he was very careful to protect his left arm and his left side. It seemed to Jamie that if anything happened to break that frail coating of skin across his chest and set the bright stains to reappearing on the pad he wore, he could not endure it.

Soon he began to realize that, from her house, and in her own garden, Margaret Cameron was watching him. He was brought to the realization by the fact that every time he came home from one of his absences in helping Mr. Carey with his bees, he found a house in order, dustless furniture, fresh bed linen, a spotless kitchen, a bowl of flowers on the living room table. One day he came home to find a shining house. That morning Margaret Cameron had examined his breast for the second time and had told Jamie what he already knew, that however faint it was, however frail it was and delicate, however frail it was to crack on slight strain, nothing altered the fact that there was a tissue coating of skin entirely covering the wound on his breast. Margaret Cameron was old enough to be his mother. She had thrown her arms around his neck and kissed him and they had performed a crude dance of exuberant joy in the small bedroom. Margaret had arranged her yellow roses in the bowl. She had drawn forward the Bee Master's chair and set before it the slippers that Jamie had been wearing.

"Margaret," he said, "you know how much I thank you for all the thoughtful things and the motherly things and the kind, heartening things that you do for me. You probably understand the cleanliness, the immaculate scrupulous state of scrupulousness, of my boyhood home. You know how I appreciate and luxuriate and grow stronger and feel better with the little housekeeping that my mother would do for me had she not been forced to make her crossing before my return. I think my house is the most wonderful house in all the world to-day. I wouldn't trade it for any house of any millionaire anywhere in the state of California. The little Scout is right in thinking that it's possible to be satisfied with what you have; that if you have a house and a flower garden and the assurance of daily bread, it is enough. Life is wonderful today, Margaret, very wonderful. I've had an interesting time with Mr. Carey and his bees. I've made up my mind that if the Bee Master wanted me to have the house and garden, I want them as badly as he could possibly want me to have them. There never was any question of my wanting them. I merely had the feeling that I might be usurping the rights of some other man. If it happened to be a woman whose rights I was usurping, then, of course—"

"Of course you'd be puddin'-headed enough to get up and get out and leave what rightfully belongs to you!" said Margaret Cameron.

"If she could convince me that she really has the right to the place, naturally, however much I loved it, I'd clear out," said Jamie. "But clearing out, said Jamie, 'you've made my living room wonderful with a world of flowers. Now, tell me truly, did you put the flowers in the bedroom?'"

Margaret Cameron turned toward him a face of frank astonishment. "No," she said, "I didn't. I never went a bedroom cluttered up with flowers. I don't like to sleep with stronger flower perfume than comes through the windows. I don't think it's healthy to lie all night in a surcharged atmosphere. I didn't put any flowers in my bedroom."

"All right, then," said Jamie. "You didn't put them there, you are the only one who has keys and access to the room. You can tell me who did."

"That's exactly what I cannot," said Margaret Cameron, "because I haven't the least notion."

"Has the little Scout been here?" "Not that I know of," said Margaret Cameron.

"Margaret," he said, "you would tell me if you knew, wouldn't you?" "Why, I think I would," said Margaret, catching his mood, and smiling back at him. "I can imagine no reason as to why I shouldn't. I think I'd tell you if I knew; but honestly and truly, Jamie, I haven't the faintest notion who would compose the very artistic combination you've been describing so enthusiastically. Have you made friends with any of the neighbors?"

"You know I haven't," said Jamie. "There aren't any neighbors on the west. Neighbors are something to acquire in the future, and you are my neighbor on the east, and beyond you I haven't penetrated."

"You told me that you had a daughter away teaching school," said Jamie, "and that you had a niece who came to see you frequently, and I wondered if either of them might have been with you and might have arranged things differently from the way you would."

Margaret Cameron shook her head. "Lolly went far up state with the school she accepted, clear to Sacramento. She can't afford to come back and forth until the term's out. I don't mind admitting that the house is like a grave without her and I've had some fears to shed because in one or two of her letters she has intimated that she might not come home for her summer vacation, that she might go with a camp of girls up in the Yosemite. To tell the truth, I felt sort of poked at Molly. Right down in my heart, I know that she was instrumental in getting my girl the school away from home, and I can't see why she did it. The plea that she would get more salary does not take into consideration the fact that she'd have to spend such a big share of her salary for food and a room, when, if she taught in the city, she could use the car line and be at home over nights and over Saturdays and Sundays."

"All right," Jamie said at last. "If you don't know, why you don't, and that's all I want to know. I'll have to do my own Sherlocking."

He said it jestingly, but the idea persisted. He went out and down the back walk. He lifted the latch of the back gate with exploring fingers. He followed the hand clasp and gravel path down to where it met the sand of the beach, and he stood and looked very intently, very carefully over the sand. By and by, he thought he began to distinguish the impress of a foot and a few yards further on he began to see what he was looking for—an imprint that he had seen before, the same shape shoe, the same width, the same broad common sense heel. Then he knew without any doubt whatever that the Storm Girl had been in his home.

"Good Lord!" he said, "I wonder what she'd think if she knew that I am about ten times the man that I was the day I married her? I wonder if she'd think I haven't played fair if she knew that I was working with all my might to be a whole man. And I wonder what she'd think if she knew that I'm not keeping my promise not to try to find her. I wonder what she'd think if she knew I broke it when I went to Margaret Cameron to see if she could tell me anything, and I broke it again when I went along the beach trailing a footstep that I know, I wonder what she'd think if she knew that right down in the desert of my heart, I just about adore her. I wonder what she'd think if she knew that there haven't been very many minutes since the night I held her in my arms that I haven't held her in memory and haven't wanted her and haven't ached for her and haven't worked for her and haven't thought about her and I've got to the place when I need most care as to why she should marry me. And I wonder what she'd think if she knew how often I've read her letter and how I appreciate it, and I wonder what she thinks when she gathers sand verben and put it into my fingers and carries it with me a few feet to the place where I found it. I wonder if I married her with sufficient assurance to stamp a little bit of my individuality on her? I wonder if she really feels that am at least half a man. I wonder if days of trouble are coming near and if she needs a man who could take care of her and comfort her and do what he could to fortify her. I wonder if those flowers beside my pillow are her way of asking me to break my word, to search for her, to find her, to help her? I wonder if they are her way of saying that she needs more from me than my name?"

Whatever he might have thought of in the nebulous character of a woman he had seen, a woman whose face and blood were manifest in her face and bearing and the tones of her voice, a woman to whom his blood had a right to cry because they were of common nationality, each only one generation removed, the fact remained that she never could be nebulous to him. She was stamped on his memory, in his consciousness in a different way from any other woman.

"Because before the Lord and by the law, she is my wife," said Jamie, "and I cannot get away from that fact and she cannot get away from it. She cannot marry any other man without making herself known and divorcing me."

Then Jamie got another blow that knocked him speechless and almost senseless for a moment.

"What's more," he said to himself and to all and sundry when he gained sufficient breath with which to speak, "what's more, James Leitch Macfarlane, you can't marry any woman, you can't have a real home, you can't have a heartstone so long as you are legally married to a girl who wants only your name, or to one who doesn't want you in person at all!"

Chapter 15
The days began to slip by rapidly. As Jamie became more familiar with the work he was supposed to do he found that constantly he could see things of his own volition that no one had told him about, yet they were things that increased the activity of the bees, things that added to the might of the garden, things that resulted in producing a larger amount of different kinds of vegetables. He found too, that a number of fruit and vegetable stands near from his location were willing to pay him worthwhile prices for anything he brought in.

There had been ten days when he had scarcely seen the little Scout, and then there came a joyous day when the child came whooping into the garden followed by Ole Pat Bill and the New Child and Aunt Face. They had made merry, and Jamie's car sang and his sides ached with laughter. They were celebrating the close of school. They were planning for a long summer that was to comprise more mischief than probably ever before had been crowded into the same length of time.

Jamie found himself mighty thankful to have the little Scout around the garden. It was not only that he received much efficient help with the bees, with the pruning and watering; it was that he had fallen deeply in love with the youngster. As he became more firmly fixed in his regard for the child, he worried, grew obsessed with the feeling that things were not as they should be; that of the Scouts it was the Master who was not attaining the height and developing the physical strength that the exercise of all of them should have resulted in producing. Several times Jamie had seriously considered calling the Scout Master's mother and asking her if she did not think Jean

Voters Attention!*Directions as to the use of Preferential Ballot

The preferential ballot will come into general use for the first time in the forthcoming provincial elections. Every voter should be thoroughly conversant with the method of marking the ballot before attempting to vote. Read these instructions:

The voter must not use the X mark.

The voter must place the figure 1 opposite the name of the candidate who is his first choice, the figure 2 opposite his second choice, the figure 3 opposite his third choice and so on until he has voted for all the candidates on the ballot if he so wishes.

The voter may plump for one candidate alone, using the figure 1, without spoiling his ballot, but is urged to vote to the full extent of his choices, as it is only by doing this that the voter obtains the full benefit of this form of ballot.

The voter must not place more than one choice opposite any one candidate.

The voter must not make the same choice for more than one candidate.

The voter must not make any mark on the ballot not authorized by these directions.

Read these Instructions Carefully

The Ballot

As the provincial general election which takes place on the 28th of this month, will run on the proportional representation plan, and as this will be the first time this plan has been used in Wetaskiwin, it would be well if all voters would give the matter some thought before election day so as not to run the risk of spoiling their ballots.

There are three candidates in the contest in this constituency: John Inglis, representing the Conservatives; H. J. Montgomery, representing the Liberals; and E. E. Sparks, representing the Progressives. In the past it has been the law to mark a plain X opposite the name of the candidate for whom the voter wanted to vote. The voting on the 28th of this month will be entirely different. On that occasion ballots will be marked with first, second and third choice. For instance the figure 1 will be marked opposite the name of the man you would rather see elected; the figure 2 opposite the name of your second choice, and the figure 3 opposite the name of your third choice.

Some appear to be of the opinion that it is policy and in the interests of their favorite candidate to vote for just their first choice. This is a mistake. The whole ticket should be marked out. Otherwise the voter has no choice in the selection of a representative should the favorite be defeated in the first count. Surely every voter should have a preference for one of the other of the two after marking one for his favorite.

Advance Polls In Wetaskiwin

For the convenience of electors in the constituency of Wetaskiwin, who will be necessarily absent from their homes on election day, June 28, an advance poll will be open from the hours of two o'clock until five o'clock in the afternoon, and from seven o'clock until ten o'clock in the evening of the Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the week before that of the election, at the council chamber in the city hall, Wetaskiwin. If there are any in Wetaskiwin who will be away from home on election day they should see to it that they cast their vote at this advance poll.

School Exams.

This is the month of brain-sweat for the school population. Some prefer to do it by installments, however, and have been "plugging" away all year. These are now comparatively speaking "on easy street." Others are now realizing the urgent need of application. Others would require a bomb to wake them up to any emergency. To these it would have been as well to say "Sleep on, it matters not now."

Psychological Moment in Colonization

The Good Book admonishes us to "observe the opportunity." Canada's present opportunity to colonize and develop her vacant spaces along energetic and intelligent lines, was never greater than at the present moment. Recent legislation in the United States further curtails the quota of immigration to that country, and it is a fair conclusion that, conditions being so nearly alike in the two countries, people overseas who now entertain a wish to emigrate to the States and find themselves excluded may, with very little exertion on our part, be persuaded to try Canada. There are, however, other factors in the present situation which indicate that the psychological moment for special colonization effort is upon us.

A movement of people into an agricultural country simultaneous with favorable crop conditions and fair prices for farm products must necessarily lead to successful colonization. An examination of crop results and rainfall statistics of the prairie provinces covering the past forty years, leads to the inevitable conclusion that the west has definitely entered a fairly long cycle of generally favorable years. The theory of fundamental climatic changes being responsible for the period of somewhat dry seasons, through which the west has passed during recent years, was once popular long ago. Climate is practically a fixed factor and climate history infallibly repeats itself. So continued prosperous seasons should, according to the law of averages, be ahead of us.

While long range climatic forecasts necessarily lead one into the field of speculation, there can be no shadow of doubt that actual, tangible figures confront us in respect to the second factor that leads to agricultural prosperity, namely, the upward tendency of farm product prices. Agriculture the world over has developed through the crude, drastic agency of the law of supply and demand, while, on the other hand, industry has developed on the two basic ideas, first, that those employed therein have a right to collective bargaining in regard to wages and labor conditions, thus rendering the law of supply and demand largely inoperative in respect to cost of labor. Secondly, that the consumer must pay the cost of producing the goods plus a fair return on capital invested.

As fully 85 per cent of the cost of all commodities and services is represented by human labor, enjoying standardized wages, it will be clear that the farmers operating and living costs have increased to a fantastic degree, while the prices for his own products have been governed by rigid economic laws wholly without reference to cost production. The average price of wheat at Liverpool during the entire 17th century, for instance, was $1.17 per bushel, with industrial labor at 25c a day. The prevailing price during 1923 was $1.23 per bushel, with industrial labor almost a dollar an hour. This will illustrate the tremendous decline in the purchasing power of the bushel of wheat, which is a fair indication of all prevailing farm produce prices.

But while the "mills of the gods grind slowly," economic laws must prevail in the end. The spectacular drift from countryside to city has been a protest against the unequal reward for services. Agriculture is now unquestionably coming into her own. The upward swing of agricultural prices during the past few years constitutes a clear indication of a gradual approach towards economic justice. And there is no danger whatever of any permanent reversion to the ruinous policy level for agricultural products that prevailed prior to the war, at least for many years to come. The price pendulum would swing back just as slowly as it is now swinging forward and only in obedience to natural laws. The future looks bright for the man on the land.

THE TEST

The test of a man is the fight he makes.
The grit that he daily shows;
The way that he stands on his feet and takes Fate's numerous bumps and blows.
A coward can smile when there's naught to fear,
But it takes a man to stand up and cheer.

While some other fellow stars,
It isn't victory, after all,
But the fight that a brother makes;
The man who, driven against the wall,
Still stands erect and takes
The blows of fate with head held high,
Bleeding and bruised and pale,
Is the man who'll win in the end by and by.
For he isn't afraid to fail.
And the bumps you get and the joins you get,
And the shock that your courage stands,
The hours of sorrow and vain regret,
The prize that escaped your hands,
That test your mettle and prove your worth.
It isn't the blows you deal
But the blows you take on this good old earth.
That show if your "stuff" is real.

was exercising too strenuously, taxing brain power to the breaking point, making of each day a round of never-ending activity. From a world dropped here and there, Jamie realized that the child was not sleeping any too well of nights. Sometimes the little Scout slipped into the living room and stretched on the davenport or into Jamie's room and, across the foot of the bed, slept for hours as the dead are supposed to sleep.

As Jamie's own strength grew, as the tissue coating of skin across his breast strengthened in thickness and faded in color, so Jamie's mind strengthened. He ceased almost entirely to think of himself. All the thought he had to need to concentrate on his work, on the little Scout, on Margaret Cameron, and he found that there was not an hour of the day in which his mind was not battling back and forth, pro and con, concerning the girl he had married.

When Jamie thought of Margaret, he thought sympathetically, wonderingly, and much of the time with a fair amount of indignation. He could not feel something was due to parents who kept the home fire burning, who weathered the years, who had doctored their children and worked over them and prayed over them, who had used the utmost of their strength and bestowed the dearest of their love, who had unselfishly given and given all they had to give, and still had earned, seemingly, nothing whatever, not even gratitude. Jamie could not believe that the attention Margaret was paying to him was not touched with the depth of devotion and tinged with the quality of consideration and love that she had given to any of the three youngsters he had loved and devoted herself to until they reached the point where they were able to fend for themselves.

One day Jamie mentioned Margaret's children to the little Scout and found that the child was as indignant as he was.

"There isn't any tellin'," said the little Scout, "as to when Lolly will get here. She doesn't think about much except herself and she does mostly what she pleases, but Lolly will come. Her job's a hard one, and she may have to rest up a few days. She may have to close her rooms and get somebody else in them, but if Molly doesn't come, she's got a mighty good reason, and when she comes, the camp fires and the picnics will begin, and there'll be something worth while 'round these parts. When Molly comes she has greatest her bearings and she's little on six cylinders, and we go!"

"I'm waitin' anxiously," said Jamie, "to know Molly."

"Well, go on waitin'," said the small person. "Stick on the job, and when she does come, if you care about girls, why, there's a girl that's got some juice in her!"

"I believe you," said Jamie. "I think you should know, and I've every confidence in your judgment."

"Aw, thanks, awfully!" said the little Scout, and with a continuation of the same breath, "I betcha—". A hand dived into a pocket, brought up some small coin and inspected it carefully. The price of a hot dog and a bottle of pop were laid aside and the remainder estimated. "I betcha seven cents I can hang by one foot."

"I believe you," said Jamie. "I think you should know, and I've every confidence in your judgment."

from the beam of the pergola right there!"

Jamie looked the situation over. "I'm not taking your bet," he said. "If your foot slipped and you came down there you'd knock your brains out."

"I wouldn't if I hit on the ground," "You would if you cracked your stones within six inches of the ground."

"Yes, and that's the kick to it, just to find out what I would hit on!" and the little Scout immediately started to scale the pergola.

"Look here," said Jamie, "cut that out! You aren't going to hang by one foot from that long that pergola!"

"I told you not to do that!" "I ain't goin' to do it!" answered the little Scout. "I heard you. There's nothing the matter with my ears. I can pull another one just as good, and if I come a smasher 'twon't break any more than my leg. I'm goin' to hang by my little finger!"

Before Jamie had time either to say or to do anything, the body of the Scout Master was dangling and it was supported by one little finger of the right hand and nothing else.

"All in!" shouted the awing youngster. "Look out! I'm comin' down! I'm alim' for the dirt. Call Grayson if I hit the stone!"

Down came the Scout Master, landing deftly and with perfect precision on the freshly watered soil of the garden, perhaps four inches from the stones that might very easily have broken a leg.

Looking over the length and the width of the acre that stretched to the sea, said the little Scout, "When I get through high school, I'm comin' here to live. They may take their darn colleges and gamble 'em and smoke 'em. I'm goin' to get my education out of the books that the Bee Master put in his library. What was good enough for him, is good enough for me, and while I read his books, I'll be thinking about him. One of the reasons I'm goin' to keep clean and walk straight and be decent like he was is because I'm going where he went, and we're goin' to see what we can get out of heaven together like we got a good deal of fun out of earth. And oh, boy! I wish he knew how I miss him!"

Twelve Reasons For Electing Liberals

1. The Liberal Party stands for a more business-like administration of Alberta affairs. The present government is without business ministers, without business experience and has been without business success. It is a class government which is divorced from business entirely.
2. It stands for greater economy in administration. The present government has increased the debt of the province in five years by $22,000,000, with nothing permanent to show for it. It has been more extravagant than any previous administration, or any other in Canada.
3. It stands for more progressive administration. The present government has nothing to show for its five years of office. It has passed no constructive legislation. It has delayed all the serious problems.
4. It stands for more active development of the unsettled areas. The present government has made no advance since it took office.
5. It stands for better development of agriculture. Capt. Shaw objects to bringing the pools into politics, but his record as a member in Ottawa shows his enthusiasm for cooperative marketing, his vigor for cheaper transportation rates, his insistence on the removal of all the burdens which have been preventing development.
6. It stands for better educational facilities. The present government has been sacrificing education and burdening the department with useless educational fads.
7. It stands for better health organization and encouragement for hospitals. There has been no development in the health department since 1921.
8. It stands for honest and efficient administration. A fair distribution of the expenditure on public works.
9. It stands for honest distribution of the province into ridings.
10. It stands for justice to the returned man in the province.
11. The record of the Liberal party has been one of development and progress. It has to its credit:
 1. The settlement of the province.
 2. The organization into municipalities.
 3. The destruction of railway, lumber, and telephone monopolies which threatened its destruction in early days.
 4. Farmer legislation such as co-operative elevator act, the farm machinery act, direct legislation.
 5. The beginning of labor legislation, which has remained unimproved. This includes the Factory Act, the Workmen's Compensation act and other similar legislation.
 6. Development of the vast Peace River area.
 7. The organization of schools, the creation of the Provincial University, the Institute of Technology and Art and the Farm Schools.
 8. Franchise for women and all legislation safeguarding the rights of women.
 9. Hospital legislation and all progressive health legislation.
 10. Soldier relief legislation.
12. It has at its head a man who has wide experience in legislation, who has at his back outstanding representatives, not of one class alone, but of all classes in the province—farmers, labor men, business men and professional men.

Facts for the Electors of the Wetaskiwin Constituency

1. All the serious problems of the Province were created by the Liberal Government that went out of office in 1921, but not one of these major problems has been solved by the U.F.A. Government during the last five years.

2. The U.F.A. Government has in five years increased the debt of our Province by at least $22,000,000.

3. The per capita debt of the Province of Alberta is approximately $190—greater than that of any other province except British Columbia.

4. The Province of Alberta is going behind $850,000 per year in respect of the Northern Railways.

5. There has been no reduction in taxation during the last five years, but rather an increase.

The Provincial Conservative party stands for the following:

1. Reduction of the indebtedness of the Province and reduction in taxation.
2. Greater efficiency in administration.
3. An energetic Immigration Policy.
4. Prompt solution of the Railway question.
5. Fair treatment for capital required for the development of the Province.
6. Better market roads.
7. A fair redistribution; reduction in the number of members in the Legislature, and reduction of the sessional indemnity from $2000.00 to $1500.00.

Will We Go Ahead to Prosperity or a Failure?

Editor, Wetaskiwin Times:

Dear Sir—Referring to the narrative which appeared in your issue of June 10th, under the heading "Among Whom We May Chose." It appears the writer of the narrative has not run out of old party political mud. He attacks the government with misrepresentations and not facts, when he states that the government has fallen short of its promises.

The present government has not made any promises that it did not fulfill, neither is the government seeking re-election on promises, as do the old parties. The Liberals are seeking their support by falsely accusing the administration of inactivity, and promising their new leader, who already has proven to be an easy-going. Previous to Mr. Shaw's election as a leader he was independent and endorsed by the U.F.A. candidate in the last federal election. He opposed the old party systems, but now he has changed his mind and declares himself a Liberal. We may say such as the string of previous high officials are enjoying. He certainly cannot be looked on as a real leader on account of his proven inactivity of mind. How can we expect him to perform his duties to better advantage than the present administration?

He speaks of inactivity on the part of the U.F.A. government. Any person who is broad-minded enough to see beyond the point of his nose can easily see that the so-called inactivity of which the old parties speak of to fool the people, is a very sound business. For instance when we look into the railway situation, the Liberals urged the government to take an order of paying $1,700,000 for the Union Bank interests, but the government waited until the bank offered to transfer the securities for $1,300,000, which is considerably less than 50 per cent of the bank's original claim. Another example is in the way the present government is handling the transfer of the natural resources. They are acting very carefully and taking time to see what they are getting, and not like the last government that got our province in such a bad shape by purchasing railroads and other white elephants with fancy names. It is evident that these things were done without the slightest consideration for the people living in Alberta.

The present administration has been in power for five years and now seeks re-election when the term is up at the expense of approximately $15,000, while the Liberals had two elections in seven years previous to the U.F.A. government, and they managed to spend $248,023 for the last election alone. What a shameful management. Are we going to give them a chance to squander some more of our money?

The remedies which the government achieved by careful action in all departments were caused by the U.F.A. members in the house using their brains and not like in the Liberal government where a member has to depend on a leader to do the thinking or to act on the orders of the dictators in the east.

It is very interesting to read Mr. Hudson's prediction regarding election results. It sounds something like the Donkshoor leader's prophecy regarding the coming end of the world.

Peter Kuhn.

An addition has been made to the Mutual Creamery to accommodate the increasing business. A deep well was drilled a few days ago, and this will now be used by the creamery.

TOWN TOPICS

E. E. Ness received a load of new Dodge cars last week.

The Conservatives have opened a committee room next to Whyte & Orr's.

Rev. Oppedahl, of Camrose, visited Rev. Borleng of this city during the past week.

Clarence Anderson, of the Bank of Montreal staff, Leduc, spent the week end with friends in the city.

Frank Baker is driving a new Willys-Knight sedan purchased last week.

The Sims-Brown Co. unloaded another carload of Ford cars on Monday of this week.

Mr. Wallace, of Santa Clara, California, visited his brother, George D. Wallace, during the past week.

The high school examinations commenced on Wednesday and these are very anxious days for the students.

Mrs. Hammond, of Edmonton was a visitor at the home of Mrs. Borleng for a few days during the past week.

A large banner, stretching from the post office corner to the Star Store, reads "Kiwanis Kārnival, June 29 - 30th - July 1st."

Mrs. V. C. French left Saturday morning for Vancouver and Victoria, where she will spend a couple of weeks with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, of Port William, spent last week in Wetaskiwin at the home of their son, Jas. Dixon, en route to Vancouver.

Miss Marie Ellis, a nurse-in-training at the University hospital, Edmonton, is spending her holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Ellis.

Mr. Ralph Forrester, of the Strathcona branch of the Imperial Bank, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Walker.

L. H. Neville has been confined to the house for several days through illness. He is improving nicely, and hopes to be around again shortly.

The Sunday school of St. Andrew's church held a picnic at Lucas Grove on Saturday afternoon. The weather was favorable, and a good time is reported.

The Dennis school, which is taught by Miss E. Nelson, succeeded in capturing the Strathcona Trust Fund shield for physical training for the year 1925.

The many friends of Mrs. Lawson are glad to learn that she is convalescing nicely at the University hospital, Edmonton, after her recent serious operation.

H. C. Cooke recently purchased a house and two lots from Thos. Ward, on Rosecroft street. As soon as the house can be fixed up, they will be in a few days, they will move in.

The Nashville Ladies' Aid will hold their annual Mission Sale of handwork and refreshments Saturday afternoon, July 3rd, at the Nashville Swedish Baptist church.

Mrs. R. B. Gunn, president of the U.F.A., addressed a meeting in the Angus Theatre on Monday afternoon. There was a small attendance, as the meeting was not well advertised.

Seventy thousand rainbow trout fry from the Banff fish hatchery have been obtained by the Northern Alberta Game and Fish Protective League and will be placed in streams west of Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. N. A. MacEachern returned Sunday evening after a visit with relatives and friends in Calgary. Mr. MacEachern was one of the delegates to the Grand Lodge A.F. & A.M. which was held at Banff.

The Cool Lake Boys' Band will hold a picnic at Pigeon Lake on Sunday, June 28th, provided the weather is favorable, where they will give a concert. The boys play exceptionally well and are well worth hearing.

Always on the lookout for new ideas for better merchandising, H. M. Parker of the Royal Market has just installed the latest in refrigeration, the "Frigidator," electric refrigerator, which entirely dispenses with ice for the preservation of food.

George Gorthard, Jr., who has been in the Misericordia hospital, Edmonton for the past two weeks following a severe attack of pneumonia, was removed to the home of his grandmother in Strathcona on Monday last. It is hoped that his condition will continue to improve.

The Edmonton Journal of Saturday last contained 104 pages and several sections were devoted to colonization. Wetaskiwin and community were given a prominent place in the issue, and this district should derive much benefit from such publicity. The issue was a credit to the Edmonton Journal and its very capable staff.

HEALTHY USE OF FOWL AND EGGS

Although there is at present a tariff of eight cents per dozen on Canadian eggs going into the United States, while American eggs coming into Canada have only a three cents per dozen tariff to negotiate, the following story, clipped from an exchange appearing in the Western Producer, says the Farmers Sun, will be of interest as indicating the magnitude of the egg and poultry business in the United States as well as the enormous possibilities for development of the business both in Canada and over the border:

"How near is the poultry business to the saturation point? In Egypt, where the poultry business has been good for 3,000 years and the annual consumption of fowls is about 45 per capita, they have been eating fowls for centuries and have been hatching them artificially in commercial hatcheries. When our hatcheries, our poultry associations, our incubator manufacturers, and our breeders have put the years of publicity behind the healthful usages of fowlmeat and eggs to the extent that our annual consumption is 40 or 50 fowls per capita, we will then be eating five million head of fowls yearly or about three to five times as many as were hatched in 1925.

Our egg consumption is about 250 eggs per capita per year, or about two-thirds of one egg a day. If by additional publicity, on all sides, the consumption can be raised to one full egg a day for each person (which seems small to me) we would raise the number from about 25 billions to 39 billions consumed each year in the United States; or, in other words, if it required a 450 million usages of fowlmeat and eggs to the two-thirds egg consumption it would take on the same basis 675 million population to produce the one whole egg a day, or an increase of 50 per cent in the chicken population; that is adult population, not counting those raised for meat.

"To advance the egg-laying population from 450 million to 675 million will require some 750 million extra chickens per year. When the poultry meat consumption takes on the four or five billion yearly, it will require the hatching of nearly 10 billions of chicks to keep the egg production and to supply the demand for meat."

CARD OF THANKS

The sons and daughters of the late Mrs. C. Davidson wish through the columns of The Times to convey their thanks to the many friends who assisted in the illness and at the death of their beloved mother; also those who sent floral tributes.

The Times invites the cooperation of residents of the country districts to write in for correspondence papers. Correspondents from districts not now represented in this paper are requested to write in for correspondence papers and particulars.

W. C. T. U.

A well attended parlor meeting was held June 9th, at the home of Mrs. A. A. Ellis. The subject taken up was a continued report of the Union. One of our members has remarked that reports foster enthusiasm and fire ambition, give ideas of service, remind of old work left undone and new undertakings.

The organizer of this society in 1908 said if we could help in creating sentiment against the liquor traffic there was a reason for our existence. But the last few years show how far the has been our efforts. If we could always measure effort by results, for the most hopeful results of temperance teachings, whether direct or through the channels of the civil results of alcohol, through efficiency or inefficiency, commercial prosperity or business depression, we must look ahead, and wherever we turn, national prohibition is under consideration. The little band of women who 24-6, the earth could rejoice with all others interested in the result of the recent hearing given the wets at Washington. For eighteen days they were given the chance of making all they could of a poor cause. But the presentation does not seem to have strengthened their claim. The report which the committee is making to the senate favors strengthening rather than relaxing the prohibition law.

While we, in western Canada, seem to have retrograded, perhaps delayed victory was the best way to teach us that law enforcement born of eternal vigilance is our only safety.

There are enough Christian women in Alberta to regain lost ground when we are given another opportunity a year or so hence. But to hold it and advance the men and women of tomorrow must be educated along the lines of scientific temperance and narcotics.

This district has had several nice showers during the past week and the crop prospects are very favorable.

HOW WHEAT POOL IS AFFECTED BY U.F.A. POLITICS

(By J. H. Hodson)

That class politics as advocated and practiced by the United Farmers of Alberta are detrimental to the advancement of the wheat pool interests is amply proved when comparison is made between the achievements of the Saskatchewan pool and the Alberta pool.

The Alberta pool started off with a bang while the movement in Saskatchewan, meeting with much organized opposition from the grain traders, was hampered and delayed. In spite of this handicap, the results achieved in Saskatchewan, by a concentration of effort and with a singleness of purpose, outshine by far the results that Alberta can make boast of.

The Saskatchewan pool controls by contract 72 per cent of the acreage of that province. Alberta controls but 60 per cent.

In 1925 Saskatchewan acquired 50 elevators. Alberta acquired three. Since that time Saskatchewan has agreed to purchase outright 451 country elevators together with three lake terminals and a transfer terminal at Buffalo, Alberta, after a stormy meeting of its directors, I am told, overruled the opinions of their president, but only managed to agree on a temporary agreement for elevator accommodation with the United Grain Growers Grain Company, to whom, no doubt, profits will accrue from the arrangement.

In Saskatchewan the farmers are not playing politics, while in Alberta we have the spectacle of the president of the wheat pool attending country school houses and talking about telephone poles, as he did at Angus Ridge school recently, in an endeavor to continue a form of political control of the U.F.A. organization of which he seems to be the permanent president and dictator; and which dictatorship he desires, so it seems, to extend to the affairs of the province and to its people.

So surely as politics are responsible for the depletion of the ranks of the U.F.A. organization, so surely will politics bring disaster to the wheat pool, if its business is not soon entirely dissociated from U.F.A. politics and politicians. This election provides an opportunity to all well-wishers of the cooperative efforts to discourage those who have been entrusted with great commercial responsibility by the farmers from further participation in political action, which cannot do otherwise than bring great harm to a new movement that must be rescued from, and kept clear of, all disruptive and harmful influences, of which politics, of course is the worst.

The time has come to call a halt to a political movement that shows every sign of being dominated by an autocrat who presides of democracy while depositing and setting up influence ministers by the weight of an influence which is given to him by a dwindling minority of unsophisticated farmers, about fifteen thousand of whom claim to represent 92,000 farmers upon each of which, it may be assured, there are an average of at least two voters.

To administer discouragement to those farmer-politicians who are mixing politics with business it is necessary to vote for either the Conservative or Liberal candidates on June 28th.

Neither the Conservative party nor its candidate has any political record in the province, good, bad or indifferent. The Liberal party has a record, so too, its candidate, Mr. Montgomery, who is a member of the legislature, as mayor of the city of Wetaskiwin, and as a business man, has shown outstanding qualities which make him a suitable man to represent the people of his riding. The Liberal party was in control of the province during the time its unorganized wilderness was transformed into an ordered state with up-to-date service and institutions, the creation of which was a great work.

It was inevitable that faults due to human frailty should have crept into the Liberal record during their long years of service. Such has been the experience of all organized communities. Much now is being made of incidents that are very small when set against the great record of good work that the Liberals accomplished between the years 1905 and 1921. But when a party has been purged by defeat and is under new leadership it should not be forever condemned for minor faults any more than a child should be forever avoided because it once had measles.

A Welshman, with his friend, a brave Scot, attended a fair together and bought a horse each.

In the dead of night both the horses died, and the Welshman, ignorant of his friend's misfortune, decided to act swiftly. Seeing the Scotsman, he said:

"Here, I say, Sandy, like to change horses with me, I don't like the color and it's more nourishing than meat."

"I don't mind much," came his friend's reply.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the Welshman. "I've done you this time, Sandy. My horse is dead!"

"Na, na, you havena," retorted the Scot. "My horse is dead, but I've taken away his shoes, so ken."

The pastor loci will introduce a practical subject.

English services will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Wednesday evening Norwegian services at 8 o'clock.

An attempt to smuggle diamonds valued at $100,000 across the Canadian border came to light when a customs official found $25,000 worth of gems in the hollow handle of a shoe brush. The men, Henry Magallies, of Albany, N.Y., and Abraham Treppel, a bookkeeper of New York, were arrested recently, when customs officials found $45,000 worth of gems in their baggage. They were released on $12,000 bail, but a further search uncovered the additional cache.

FEEDING THE FAMILY

In no department of home-making has the housewife a greater responsibility than in the food she provides for those dependent upon her, and especially in this time where there are growing children in the home.

As food is the material from which our bodies are built, how essential it is that they be furnished with that which will make and keep them sound and strong and disease resisting.

School nurses, physicians and dietitians tell us that the prevalence of poor eyesight, diseased tonsils and decaying teeth among school children is largely caused by our modern food. Many of these are so processed (or refined) that the most nourishing and necessary portions for health are eliminated.

Food values are being sacrificed to appearance. The modern white bread, cakes, etc., appeal to the eye regardless of the fact that the best part of the grain has been left out. This is also true of white sugar, syrup and cereals.

Our food and various other preparations, expensive and not so nutritious, are largely displacing the old-fashioned oatmeal, whole wheat and cornmeal porridges.

In many homes too much meat is served and too little of vegetables and fruit. I have been in homes where vegetables were almost a luxury, so seldom were they served.

Mothers should see to it that the children acquire a liking for the foods their bodies need. Too much fancy baking—pies, cake, etc., tend to spoil the appetite for plainer and more nutritious foods.

A healthy appetite requires no tempting other than the presence of single food appetizingly prepared and served.

Health specialists tell us that more ill-health is caused by over-eating than by not taking sufficient food.

I have seen little children munching between meals, huge wedges of rich cake or pie, who would probably say, "If offered bread and milk or bread and butter for one small boy did you wanted cake?" "I can't bread and butter hungry."

Food is a necessary article of diet, and although quite expensive, is much cheaper and more satisfactory than ill-health and doctor's bills. Oranges, raisins, dates, figs, nuts and apples are procurable almost the year round and are more nourishing than meat.

The mother who can provide a reasonable supply of these, with good whole wheat bread, brown sugar, honey, milk, cream, eggs, cottage cheese, a little meat, maple syrup, butter, vegetables, and whole cereals need not fear that her family will suffer from lack of nourishment.

To the Electors of the Provincial Constituency of Wetaskiwin

Ladies and Gentlemen:

On Monday, June 28th, you will be called upon to go to the polls and elect a member to represent this constituency in the Legislative Assembly for the next parliamentary term.

I have the honor of being selected as the Liberal Candidate and as it will be impossible to meet you all personally between now and election day, I take this opportunity of soliciting your support.

I have been a resident of Wetaskiwin for over twenty-five years; have had several years of experience both in Provincial and Municipal affairs, which together with my knowledge of farming and agricultural conditions, should enable me to deal in a practical and intelligent manner with all matters of public interest.

If elected my duties as your representative will not cease when the legislature adjourns after a six or eight weeks' session but I will be on the job twelve months in the year, and will see that the needs of the constituency in the way of public services are not neglected.

The Liberal party in this province conducted the affairs of government from 1905 to 1921, and with pioneering vigor and courage and with statesmanship and foresight, led the way in helpful, progressive and effective legislation, and administered the affairs of this young and growing country in a capable and efficient manner, laying the foundation deep, strong and true for its future greatness.

The last five years have witnessed a flabby relapse into inaction. Instead of courageously facing and solving our problems, the U.F.A. government has either ignored them or shuffled them off for future consideration.

Public service in this constituency, such as roads, bridges and telephones have been shamefully neglected and public money that should have been made available in maintaining, and improving these services has been spent elsewhere in other portions of the province. Our needs in these respects are just as great, if not greater than in many other places, but they have not been presented with sufficient strength and aggressiveness to secure our just appropriations, and we have suffered beyond measure for this inefficiency and neglect.

Many doubted in 1921 whether it was in the farmers' best interests to enter the political arena as an organization. Many are now of the opinion that it was a mistake.

Never before in any country has such an opportunity arisen for service to the farmers in the commercial field by their own organization as now presents itself. Several great marketing organizations have been launched which to be successful must command the entire time and energy of the best men in that organization. When their talents and time are divided between business and politics the marketing pools that can be made to render such profitable service are bound to suffer, and in time collapse.

Upon the prosperity of our farmers rests the hope for our future in this province. But to attain the most successful future it is essential that all classes of the community, be it farmer, laborer, merchant, mechanic or professional man—all must keep step together in marching to the goal of our destiny. The welfare of every class is inextricably interwoven with the welfare of every other class, and no government can long endure which fails to recognize these essential facts.

The Liberal party is now appealing to you on a program of real Liberal Policies in the interests of all the people.

I respectfully ask for your vote and influence, and trust that you will mark your ballot 1 for me on June 28th.

Yours faithfully,

H. J. MONTGOMERY.

The Liberal Program

MANIFESTO OF CAPT. J. T. SHAW, LIBERAL LEADER

1. Immediate examination of our provincial taxation system and adjustment on sound principles of taxing powers between the province and the municipalities.
2. Decentralization as far as practicable in the services of the government, so as to secure more efficient service at least cost.
3. An immediate and long overdue reduction in taxation with special tax adjustments for sub-urban areas not suitable to intensive production.
4. A serious and determined effort to make expenditure balance income every year, even over-precedation year only, as at present.
5. The budgeting of an adequate sum every year, on the sinking fund principle to effect the retirement of our public debt within a reasonable time.
6. Realizing the primary importance of the agricultural industry, the Liberal party pledges itself to assist that industry in every reasonable way by ensuring that cooperative marketing enterprises get a square deal, secure from an unfair competition and partisan influence and all discrimination; by the provision of adequate facilities for marketing the farmers' produce, by establishing, in close cooperation with the Dominion government, a system of rural credits based on sound sound principles, by vigorous demand before the Railway Commission for needed reductions in railway and express rates and for the elimination of discriminatory freight rates, and by jealously guarding the farmers' interests in the western route, not only by zealous watching but also by proper representation.
7. The Liberal party undertakes to inspire a real leadership in educational affairs and will be prepared to make more liberal financial provision for that essential service. Also will use every endeavor to have the federal government not only continue but increase its grants for technical education. In addition there must be a closer coordination of the agricultural work undertaken by the university and other schools in the province.
8. The Liberal party pledges itself to encourage an expansion in the hospital and nursing service of the province in order to promote the highest standard of public health.
9. The Liberal party has assisted in every possible way to secure the return to the province of its natural resources. This should soon be realized. If honored with public confidence development of these resources in the public interest along sound business lines.
10. When entrusted with office the Liberal party will engage a small body of experts to examine the sources of power in the province for the purpose of evolving if possible a practical power scheme to supply cheap power to our communities for industrial and agricultural purposes.
11. The Liberal party offers a redistribution according to a definite plan on the principle of representation by population, paying however, due regard to the more sparsely settled portions, geographical area and community of interest; it being understood that such redistribution will substantially reduce the number of provincial ridings.
12. The Liberal party proposes to encourage a policy of cooperative effort of all classes and their representatives in the interests of democratic legislation.
13. The Liberal party strongly favors and approves of a cooperative effort between the Dominion and Provincial governments for the purpose of securing old age pensions. The plan which has received second reading in the house of commons is approved.
14. The Liberal party is responsible for every advance made in securing to women a higher measure of equality in political and economic matters. That policy must be continued until in every practicable way, women enjoy the fullest equality with men.
15. The Liberal party offers to the electors a policy of constructive effort and action, and a government "of all the people, by all the people and for all the people."

MR. TOBIN SPEAKS ON THE BUDGET

Now, of the speeches I have heard since I entered this house, I would make this criticism, and again I am doing it with the best of motives. When a member of the opposition makes a certain statement, we do not have to refute it, because some member on that side is certain to save us the trouble. For instance one of our friends opposite will tell us that the tariff lowers prices, and another member near him will say that this is not so, that the tariff raises prices. Then again, an hon. member opposite will tell our good Progressive friends that the west does not want immigration, while another member of the opposition will follow this with an absolute contradiction, and state that he cannot understand why the people of the west are so foolish as to invite competition. Only yesterday one of our opposition friends said that the people of the west are of no particular benefit to the country anyhow, for they are hard-up, they are broke; another hon. gentleman from the same side was kind enough to tell them they are rich and greedy and want the earth. Then we are advised by our friends opposite that we should adopt a policy of retaliation towards the States in fiscal matters—that they tersely term a "brick for brick" policy of protection; and other members of the opposition offer somewhat different counsel and advise the country to take no heed of what our neighbors do in tariff matters, but to follow an entirely independent line. I recall another instance of these contradictory statements. An hon. member on the other side told the leader of the Progressive party: "You are the one really in control of the government," but yesterday another follower of the right hon. leader of the opposition told us that the Prime Minister was leading the hon. member for Brandon blindly, and that the latter really had no say in government policy. In short these contradictions are frequent from our friends opposite and save us a lot of trouble.

The first member to take up the debate on the budget was the hon. gentleman from South Wellington. (Mr. Guthrie) and in the course of his speech he stated, in effect, that hundreds of millions of dollars of agricultural products were coming into Canada from the United States. I would say to him in reply that trade is barter; we cannot sell unless we buy.

I have carefully prepared an annotated table from figures supplied by the department, showing that the exports to the United States from Canada in 1925 amounted to $82,309,532, while the imports from the U.S. to Canada were $324,529.

The exports were 750 per cent greater than the imports. I would like hon. gentlemen to look at these figures. They are exact and draw a wonderful picture. These fourteen commodities comprise nearly four-fifths of the trade between the two countries, showing the great importance of these products. I did not pick out these articles for the purpose of showing contrasts, but took the ordinary, every day articles of trade between the two countries. The hon. member said there were hundreds of thousands of dollars in agricultural products imported into Canada from the United States; there are no hundreds of thousands in the whole trade. We only imported from the United States animal and agricultural products to the total value of $82,309,532, and we exported to that country a total of $324,529.

Now let us take the matter of potatoes. Potatoes come into Canada under a duty of 35 cents per hundred pounds, and the United States duty 50 cents per hundred pounds. It is argued that we should raise our duty to equal that of the United States. Will we take a chance on losing a trade amounting to nearly $3,000,000 for the sake of $500,000? Let us take butter; the United States duty is 12 cents per pound, as against the Canadian duty of 2 cents. Hon. gentlemen argue that we should raise our duty, regardless of which way the trade flows.

The United States duty is 12 cents and the Canadian duty only 4 cents, but we export nearly $2,000,000 worth of butter to the United States, as against our imports which amount to about $13,000. Will we run the risk of losing all our trade by tampering with that duty? We might raise the duty until there would be no trade at all; would that be good business?

I might go on, but it is not necessary to labor this question. The same applies to wheat and to fresh meats. If we did nothing else in Canada but carry on agriculture, we would have a favorable trade balance of over $35,000,000.

Let us go further. The total exports of all commodities to all countries from Canada in 1925 amounted to $1,270,938,554. Of this total farm products amounted to $756,471,618, leaving a balance of $514,466,936. That is to say the agricultural and animal products, exported from Canada annually amount to $756,471,618 more than all the other commodities exported by this country. That would take in all the products of our forests, our fisheries and mines, and all the products of our great factories from the east to the west. We exported $241,000,000 more of agricultural and animal products than of all these other products combined.

One hon. gentleman opposite states that wheat has practically reached its limit, that wheat prices will not stand any greater production. All I can say is that prices may come down, and the farmers must face that situation. All they can do is to do what they are doing today. They must have greater efficiency in transportation, diversification and new varieties in their production, better methods, and lower rates of interest. We in the farming community in the west understand that we must compete with the world; there is no protection from that. When the farmer raises his bushel of wheat, he knows he must compete with the world at large; there is no give and take. He cannot carry on as the business man does. The business man can simply add any extra expense to the price of his product. Any extra tax or duty he can put under the head of overhead and pass it on to the consumer, but the farmer cannot do that; he must raise his wheat and then take chances with the world. So you can understand why the farmers are in favor of more efficient transportation and lower money rates to help them in their competition with the world. I am not posing as a farmer, but I have lived amongst farmers all my life and know their ways, and their difficulties. I know how they look at their position. The farmer cannot pass his expenses on to the consumer. He cannot hire labor as other lines of business can do, and add the cost to the price of his product. That is good business, but the farmer cannot do it. He can only hire labor in the rush season, for he is competing against the world and his product cannot stand the pressure. It does not seem right that the business should not be of sufficient productiveness as to enable those engaged in it to hire the labor they require, but it is only the advanced farmers, or those who have large capital to start with, who can hire all the labor they require.

To me the present misunderstanding between the east and the west is a most unfortunate thing. I do not believe this has been brought about by politics; it is a real misunderstanding. You hear people say that the west is selfish. I wish hon. gentlemen would go out and visit the west; they will then wonder why it has not made greater progress. Less than four years ago there was no traffic moved from Alberta to the Pacific coast, and none of our grain was shipped there. An elevator was built there in 1914, but it stood idle. Now, if hon. gentlemen will look at the map they will observe that Alberta is 750 miles from the Pacific ocean. They will find that the Canadian National Railway pass through the mountains is one of the finest in the world and the transportation system one of the best. Vancouver has an harbor that is unequalled, and right there is the Pacific ocean ready to carry our products to the world's markets. The Panama canal was completed many years ago, and it provides cheap transportation by water. The effect of that is seen to be striking when I mention that lumber from the Pacific by that route can be brought into the Ottawa district in successful competition with local lumber. Would you not wonder therefore why it was that with a good harbor on the Pacific coast, open all the year round, and connected by water with the world's markets, wheat raised in Alberta was shipped two-thirds of the way across the continent to the ports of the Atlantic? Does not that seem strange? To what was this condition due? To the fact that the freight rates to and from the Pacific coast were so high that commodities could not and did not flow that way. But in 1922 there was a cut of 20 per cent in the freight rates from the prairies, and a movement of traffic started westward. In 1923 there was another cut, and even greater quantities moved to the Pacific. This year I am glad to say there has been a further equalization of rates and we are shipping about 45 million bushels to the Pacific coast. We do not expect to ship all our wheat to the Pacific coast. We are not selfish; we should like the equalization of rates to apply to the east as well as to the west. We should like the people of the Maritime provinces to get proper rates on the Transcontinental from the great lakes to Atlantic ports. We will work for that just as heartily and just as enthusiastically as we are doing in the case of the equalization of rates to the Pacific coast.

I have pictured these conditions in order to show that we in the west have had to contend with. A man who raises a bushel of wheat in Alberta is sixteen cents worse off than the man who raises a bushel of wheat in Ontario, because the former has to pay 16 cents a bushel to move that wheat to the east this far. The rate for the carriage of a bushel of oats is 12 cents a bushel, and there is very little profit in it because the price the grower receives for that bushel is so low. That will enable you to understand why there is such a demand in the west for the construction of the Hudson Bay railway in order to provide a cheaper outlet for at least a portion of the products of the west.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE
The June meeting of the Millet Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. Wood, Larch Tree, on Wednesday afternoon. A large attendance was out, there being a membership record of 25 and ten visitors.

The central interest of this meeting was the report of the convention at Calgary to which Mrs. Radell, constituency convener, Wetaskiwin, was the delegate.

The Women's Institute is holding a sale of home cooking and sewing in the community hall on Saturday afternoon, June 26th, and afternoon tea will also be served.

There will be a millinery demonstration in connection with the institute in the community hall on July 7, 8 and 9th, open to all. Everybody is welcome. Bring your scissors and needles.

A suggestion was made and discussed regarding the possibility of organizing a girls' institute club.

Following the meeting delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

THE FOLLY OF TAKING DIGESTIVE PILLS

Warns Stomach Sufferers. Neutralize Dangerous Acids in Stomach with Hot Water and Magnesia

"Never force the digestion of fermenting food from your stomach simply to get temporary relief from indigestion," says a well known authority. The habit of taking digestive pills after meals makes chronic dyspepsia of many thousands of men and women because artificial digestion, drugs and medicines have practically no influence upon the excessively acid condition of the stomach contents which is the cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The after dinner pill merely lessens the sensitiveness of the stomach nerves and thus gives a false sense of freedom from pain. If those who are subject to indigestion, bloating, gas, sour stomach, belching, heartburn, etc., after eating would get a little pure Bismarck Magnesia (either powder or tablets) from any druggist and take a teaspoonful of the powder or one of the tablets in a little water after meals, there would be no further necessity for drugs or medicines because the Bismarck Magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acidity, stops food fermentation and thus insures painless digestion by enabling the stomach to do its work without hindrance.

EXTERNAL HELP NEEDED TO DELIVER CHINA FROM HER PRESENT DEADLOCK

(By J. A. Alkin)

Winnipeg, June 5.—With an impatient government at Peking which is unable to carry out its policy in the country or impose its will in any form; with all the railways north of the Yangtze Kiang river out of commission through neglect or torn up by invading or marauding troops; with the north divided against the south and the central and northern provinces engaged in civil war and no leader of promise in sight at all equal to the demands of the day, the prospect for China being delivered from the evils of a hard situation are not bright, according to Norman P. Lambert, recently returned from a business trip to China, where he represented the Maple Leaf Milling company. Mr. Lambert was in Hong Kong, Shanghai, Tientsin, and Dairen, and had plenty of opportunity for exercise of his trained interest in social and economic questions which are right to the front over there. In his view the military deadlock and the blocked wheels of progress can best be relieved by a conference properly called which will bring together the provincial leaders who may then discuss with Peking delegates the outlook for reorganization and a new start which will redeem China and usher in the new era now past due. Mr. Lambert is of the opinion that the initiative will have to be taken by some external influence but preferably by a Chinaman if he were available.

"The situation in China is not one to be estimated by ordinary western standards. It is part due to the coming together of eastern and western cultural systems, complicated by the absence of any conception like the modern state of western thought and political organization. China up till comparatively recently had maintained a superior and aloof from the rest of the world, worshipping the shade of its ancestors and shut in behind the great wall. This explains the fact that those actually stirred by the present upheaval do not comprise more than a tenth of the population. The remainder are mostly content to keep the even tenor of their ways and are not easily turned by the movements for or against western ideas.

"There has never been a central political authority in modern China after the Roman or western plan," said Mr. Lambert. "In place of our western ideas of law and jurisprudence stood the Chinese doctrine of responsibility which eliminated the individual, and rested upon the head of the family, the village or province. In the forties of the last century, when the local men got into difficulties with foreign traders in Canton, any reference to Peking only brought back word that the responsibility was local and the Canton techans must act. If a canoe was hurt, the appeal to the emperor was referred back to Canton for adjustment. The Chinese have not been trained to the national idea, like their neighbors, the Japanese. Whatever the future may bring, it will require time for any real change in the Chinese political mentality.

"Unquestionably the rise to power of any strong man might prove the needed tonic to brace up the mass of the people of China." Mr. Lambert proceeded. "At present, however, there is no leader on the horizon who gives promise of political capacity for national leadership. Wap-fu is the most popular military leader and holds undisputed sway in the central and far west provinces. He is not regarded, however, as having administrative capacity."

FIELD DAY AT LACOMBE EXPERIMENTAL STATION SATURDAY, JULY 3, 1926

What is the best grass for hay? What is the best grass for pasture? What is the best silage crop? Every farmer is interested in these questions. Every variety of grass and silage crop which gives promise of success in central Alberta is now growing at the Lacombe experimental station. Come and see these crops growing, learn the best methods for seeding and harvesting, and join in the discussion.

Some of the hay crops are alfalfa, sweet clover, red clover, alsike, white Dutch, timothy, bromine and rye. Some of the annual hay crops are Sudan grass, Tett grass, millets and green feed mixtures.

Root crops include mangels, sugar beets, carrots and turnips.

It is possible, come early and see the grounds and livestock before noon. Hot water will be provided for those bringing their lunches.

Eight of the greatest chiefs of the Sudan recently visited England. They are grave and dignified, and at home would think it childish to show great surprise or excitement; but the Big Village of London was too much for them, and they marvelled greatly at its wonders. But when they got home and tell what they saw, who will believe them?

Provincial Weekly News Bulletin

Tourist Traffic is Heavy

Tourist traffic into Alberta mountain resorts has been very heavy for the month of May and the first part of June. The present condition of the Calgary-Banff highway, which was completed as a permanent highway last year, has been responsible for practically doubling the early season traffic into Banff and Lake Louise. The total number of cars passing through the Kananaskis gate during May was 4,086, compared with 2,181 the same month last year. A new record for three days was established when, over the Victoria day weekend 1,537 cars passed through the gate, an increase of 712 cars over the previous three day record.

Expect 15,000 Visitors

More than 15,000 visitors are expected at Canmore during the four-day celebration by the Norse Society of Canada, in the first week in July, when Norsemen from all over the Dominion and from parts of the United States will gather. A special provincial exhibit of agricultural products will be displayed by the department of agriculture.

Dig Area Filled On

A total of 80,000 acres in oil leases have been filled on during the last week in the vicinity of Foremost, southeast of Lethbridge, where large gas deposits have been located. Drilling for oil will be undertaken by the syndicate filling on the leases.

U.S. Editors Visit Province

A party of editors of daily and weekly newspapers from Michigan and Minnesota, were visitors to the province during the past week. They were members of the Inland Press association and the Graphic Arts Guild, and spent a day in Edmonton and Jasper Park.

FERINTOSH

The death of Mrs. Charles Davidson occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles La Pointe, on May 31st, at the age of 72 years and seven months. She was born in Ontario and resided in that province until the year 1899, when she, with her husband and family, moved to Alberta and took up a homestead in the Ferintosh district, which has since been their permanent home.

Her husband predeceased her in 1916. She leaves to mourn her loss three sons and six daughters, forty-four grandchildren and twelve great grandchildren. Six of her children are residents of this district and were able to be in attendance at her bedside. One daughter resides at Red Willow, Alberta, on in Manitoba and another in Saskatchewan.

She has been a patient sufferer from cancer for many months, but her death was not entirely unexpected.

HILLSIDE

The regular monthly meeting of the U.F.A. was held Friday evening at the home of H. G. Young. There was a good turnout of members. The delegates to the political convention gave their reports and the coming election was thoroughly discussed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. E. Loder.

The U.F.A. are holding their annual picnic at the school grounds on Saturday, June 19th. There will be a good line of sports for old and young. There will be two basketball games instead of baseball. There will be a dance in the evening.

Lyle Marr and Harry Lind returned Wednesday from Edmonton where they attended the farm young people's week at the university. The boys spent a splendid time and hope to be able to attend the university week next year.

The Junior U.F.A. will hold their meeting on Friday evening in the school. The delegates to the farm young people's week will give their reports. Refreshments will be served and all senior members of the U.F.A. and U.F.A. are invited to be present.

The church service will be held in the school next Sunday afternoon at the hour of 2:30 instead of 3:30. The change is made on account of the induction of elders in the United Church, Millet, in the evening. It is expected that a number from this district will attend.

Mrs. T. H. Howes and Miss M. Young were Wetaskiwin visitors on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Dinney, of Millet, accompanied Rev. Howard Sunday afternoon to the Hillside service.

GRAIN STILL MOVING

Marketings of grain at points along the Canadian National Railways almost reached the two million bushel mark for the week June 4 to 10. During that period farmers brought in 1,239,000 bushels, while 1,218 cars, carrying 2,679,000 bushels were loaded at country elevators along the same lines. These figures are more than three times those for the same period last year, and there is still 3,154,000 bushels in store at C.N.R. points. This amount is distributed through the three provinces, Manitoba having 784,000 bushels, Saskatchewan 1,625,000 and Alberta 334,000 bushels.

A Subscriber's Viewpoint on Trading in Home Town

Editor's Note—We are in receipt of the following contribution from a subscriber, on the subject of trading at home, and in accordance with our policy of freedom of the press on all public questions, we are publishing this contribution over the signature of "A Subscriber."

Editor, Wetaskiwin Times:

Dear Sir:—In the last issue of your paper you published an article on patronizing the home merchant. As articles of this nature have appeared in your paper at various times, I think it is time the other side of the question had a hearing.

I am one of the many farmers who patronize both the home merchant and the mail order houses, and who always patronize the home merchant when we think we are getting a square deal.

We realize that it would be difficult for the small merchant to compete with the prices of the large mail order house, and every fair minded farmer is willing to pay a little more for the advantage of buying the goods where he can see it first. On the other hand when one has to pay as much as thirty per cent more for the privilege of helping to build up the community it is too much. We are all here to make a living, the merchant as well as the farmer—in spite of the fact that you claim he is here for our convenience.

There are thousands of dollars that go out of this town every year that would stay here if the merchants were satisfied with a smaller profit, and the merchant would not lose, but gain because of his increased turnover.

In reply to the statement that the local merchant was ready to help us out when times were hard by extending credit whereas we could not get this help from the mail order houses—do we not all remember how, when the hard times came we were met with signs on every hand: "Please do not ask for credit," "Do not take goods out of this store until paid for," and others. Of course there were always a few to whom credit was extended, but to the great majority it was not. I am not blaming the merchant—he could not run his business otherwise, but do not let him now take credit for what he did not do. And just here let me mention that some of the local merchants have a cash price and a credit price, and the credit price is so much higher than the cash price that those to whom the favor is extended pay well for it.

Every time I pay a merchant more than what I believe he can reasonably expect, I feel that I am making him a present of that much, and that money is worth just as much to me as it is to him.

Yours truly,

"A Subscriber."
